Ty Ar-Y-Bryn is a striking and highly efficient four-bedroom detached home, built in 2017 to meet the rigorous standards of Passive House design. Set in a quiet and desirable residential area of Nantgarw, this contemporary property blends sustainability with exceptional comfort, offering spacious, light-filled accommodation ideally suited to modern family living.

Constructed with a strong focus on energy efficiency and environmental responsibility, the home benefits from a mechanical ventilation and heat recovery system (MVHR), high-performance insulation, and airtight construction—resulting in remarkably low energy bills, consistent indoor temperatures, and excellent air quality throughout. Passive Houses use up to 90% less energy for heating and cooling compared to traditional homes. The MVHR system plays a vital role, continuously circulating fresh air while recovering heat from outgoing air to promote a healthier, more comfortable living environment.

The thoughtfully designed layout includes two generous reception rooms, a stylish open-plan kitchen/dining area with bi-fold doors to the garden, a study/home office, utility room, and ground-floor WC. Upstairs, there are four spacious double bedrooms, three modern bathrooms, and a walk-in wardrobe to the principal suite.

Externally, the property boasts landscaped gardens, a generous resin driveway with ample off-road parking, and a gated entrance. An additional plot to the front may offer potential for a double garage (subject to planning permission). The rear garden is particularly generous, ideal for family use or entertaining, and features a useful block-built shed with conversion potential.

Located in a sought-after residential setting, the property is close to the excellent public transport links, highly regarded schools and the excellent local amenities, with quick access to the M4 and A470 for easy commuting.
