PROPERTY DETAILS

Welcome to The Old Police House – a truly unique and versatile detached family residence, beautifully presented and offering exceptional space alongside a self-contained annexe. Rarely does a home combine such character, practicality, and opportunity, whether for extended family, guests, or generating rental income. Set in the heart of the Yorkshire Dales National Park, this remarkable home enjoys a prime level position on an attractive tree lined street close to Upper Wharfedale School, just moments from the charming villages of Threshfield and Grassington. With Skipton—the renowned “Gateway to the Dales”—only ten miles away, and West Yorkshire and East Lancashire within comfortable commuting distance, the location balances rural beauty with everyday convenience.

The main house is warm and welcoming, featuring a cosy sitting room with feature fireplace, an inviting dining space with multi-fuel stove, and a spectacular dining kitchen complete with oak cabinetry, granite worktops, integral appliances, and a traditional Aga. Double doors open out to the private walled garden, perfect for entertaining and relaxed family living. Upstairs, four generous double bedrooms include a master with en-suite, while the house bathroom impresses with a contemporary four-piece suite, free-standing bath, and rainfall shower.

Externally, the home continues to impress. A large private driveway accommodates several vehicles, while landscaped gardens wrap around the property, with lawns, established planting, patios, and a timber shed with power and lighting

ANNEXE

Adjoining the property, the self-contained annexe is brimming with character, offering its own entrance, modern kitchen, cosy sitting room, double bedroom, bathroom, and enclosed garden – the ideal independent retreat.

Combining history, charm, and modern comfort in one of the Dales’ most sought-after settings, The Old Police House is more than just a home – it’s a lifestyle.
