- The owner cannot sell or transfer the property without the written consent of the mortgage lender, Leeds Building Society. This is a standard security measure for lenders.

- The lease contains rules that limit the owner's ability to sell or rent out the property (a process known as alienation).

- The owner may be required to give up the lease (surrender it) under specific circumstances mentioned in the lease document.

- There are restrictive covenants, which are binding rules, contained in legal documents from 2009 and 2012 that limit how the land can be used.

- The property does not include the ownership of mines and minerals deep underground, and others have the right to enter the land to work these if necessary.

- The land is subject to any historical liabilities to help pay for the repair of local infrastructure like roads, paths, or water defences.
