Area

Canford Heath stands out as the largest lowland heath in the UK and the most extensive heathland in Dorset, covering around 344 hectares (approximately 850 acres). This is a hotspot for a variety of wildlife including smooth snakes, sand lizards, Dartford warblers, nightjars, as well as diverse dragonflies and British reptiles. Perfect for walking, cycling, or simply losing yourself on its sandy paths. Canford Heath is now a built-up residential area within the heath, Its community is supported by local amenities including two pubs, churches, an Asda and Iceland supermarket, plus multiple schools and offers a variety of shops, schools, and library. Good transport links make the main towns of Bournemouth, Poole and Wimborne easily accessible. This makes the area a unique mix of natural sanctuary and suburban life.
