DESCRIPTION

Walton House is a charming and characterful period home arranged over several floors, tucked away behind a gated passageway opening into a private courtyard and welcoming conservatory entrance. Rich in architectural detail and enjoying glimpses towards the sea, this elegant property combines generous accommodation with timeless period charm.

The house is entered via a timber and double glazed conservatory leading into an entrance hall with staircase rising to the first floor, where a stylish shower room with large walk-in shower is positioned on the half landing. The principal reception rooms are beautifully proportioned, including an impressive sitting room with high ceilings, part timber-panelled walls and an imposing fireplace with marble surround. A large bay window frames attractive views along East Street past the Lord Nelson towards the sea.

From the landing, a doorway opens into a delightful dining room with sash window to the rear and built-in bench seating, creating a warm and sociable entertaining space. Beyond lies a generously sized kitchen fitted with an extensive range of units, polished stone work surfaces and integrated appliances, while a vaulted ceiling with exposed timbers and roof lights enhances the sense of space and character.

A further reception room, currently arranged as a bedroom, mirrors the elegance of the sitting room with its bay window, timber-panelled walls and cast iron fireplace, again enjoying views along the street towards the sea.

The second floor provides three well-proportioned double bedrooms arranged around a polished timber-floored landing, two of the bedrooms retaining attractive ornamental cast iron fireplaces. An elegant family bathroom serves this floor, while a cosy snug or TV room tucked within the eaves offers an additional retreat.
