Location

Hamilton located on the northern border of Leicester took its name from the deserted medieval village of the same name which lied between the present day villages of Scraptoft and Barkby Thorpe. From its concept some 25 years ago, Hamilton has grown into a major residential area and has become largely self sufficient with schools from nursery up to secondary age groups, a library and community centre, shops including a large Tesco store and business and industrial areas. Further amenities can be found in neighbouring towns and villages such as Thurmaston, Birstall and Syston with the later having its own railway station providing access to London in approximately 80 minutes. The A607 provides a direct route into the city centre and the nearby A46 western bypass to the north and the A563 outer ring road to the south takes traffic around the county and directly to the M1 and M69 motorways making the area an ideal commuter location.
